Alcoholic Husband-How To Deal With a Spouse Who Has a Drinking Problem

You are reading this now because you are desperate for help. You've tried everything you can think of in an attempt to get your spouse to stop drinking and nothing has worked. You are angry, frustrated, tired of all of the insanity, and have reached your wits end. You need help because it's impossible to deal with the alcoholism that is ripping you and your relationship apart. Here's some good news, I can help you learn how to cope with your alcoholic husband.

I understand exactly what you are going through. Even though your story may be different from mine, the characteristics of an alcoholic are the same. Living with an alcoholic often leaves people feeling frustrated and hopeless, unless they find the proper help needed in order to learn how to cope with an alcoholic husband, wife, child, family member or friend.

Much of the wisdom found in this book was gained over a forty five year period of dealing with alcoholics.

Both of my parents were alcoholics. One of my siblings is an alcoholic as well. I was also married to an alcoholic and prescription pill addict.

Over fifteen years ago, I had a personal battle with addiction and have been sober ever since. I've experienced the pain of addiction on both sides, from the addict's point of view, and from the friend or family member's point of view.

Through the years, I've attended thousands of support group meetings designed to keep an addict clean, and meetings tailored for the friends and family members of addicts.

The intention of this book is to provide you with the help you so desperately need right now in coping with the abusive situation you are living in.
