"Why Me, Lord?" A Soldier's Memoirs from WWII LeRoy Amborn

This book is an innovative, heart-felt story of a WWII soldier who enlisted at the age of 19. The author, during his service, asked many times, "Why Me, Lord?" from the time of being assigned to the 391 AAW Battalion, to basic training, through anti-air action in England, Omaha Beach, and France, to a transfer to the 6850 Internal Security - Nuremberg, Germany, through serving as a cell guard for the main Nazi criminals, and also having talks with Foreign Minister Ribbentrop, Field Marshall Goering and others. The same question continued to weigh heavily on the author's mind as he sailed home on the battle scarred Cruiser Portland. The homebound ship barely survived a disastrous storm in which the author witnessed the sad loss of life and felt the compassion of an unknown sailor who guided him to safety in the ship's motor room. "Why Me, Lord" is a gripping, historical account from one soldier of the "Greatest Generation". Readers of this book will receive a priceless feel for what it was really like for those who served our country during WWII.
